

Extra Credit Question 1

By comparing the search times for a binary tree and a ternary tree I found that for a large tree we would need less compares to do than a binary tree. Although this slight advantage would give as eventually the same complexity  $O(\log n)$  as the binary search tree, it would add more complexity to the implementation to